JULIE STEPHENSON
In Our Hands

In this series of works Stephenson explores her own place in the Earth's geological timeline, utilising the stratified layering of the landscape as a framework of enquiry for her own personal journey.

Combining a diverse array of photographic imagery, mixed media works and artist's books, and incorporating museological display strategies, Stephenson poses questions about the ramifications of human influence on the majestic and sublimely powerful landscape of the Kimberley region.

Currently based near the Glasshouse Mountains in South-East Queensland, Stephenson has exhibited in numerous solo and group exhibitions across Australia. Her work is held in both public and private collections.

Opening Night - Wednesday April 10th 6-8pm.
